East Hollywood is a community that forms the eastern portion of the Hollywood district in the City of Los Angeles. It encompasses the part of Hollywood east of Western Avenue and north of the 101 Hollywood Freeway. The northern border is Hollywood Boulevard, and the eastern boundary is North Hoover Street. This includes the smaller communities of Thai Town, Virgil Village, and Little Armenia, and borders Los Feliz and Silver Lake, about 4 miles from Downtown Los Angeles.

East Hollywood is an ethnically and economically diverse neighborhood, and is home to many important city institutions and landmarks, including: Paramount Studios, Kaiser Permanente Hospital, Childrens Hospital of Los Angeles, Los Angeles City College, St. Vincent's Medical Center, and Hollywood Presbyterian Medical Center.

East Hollywood - Los Angeles Times Neighborhood Profile

Historic L.A.'s "A Short History of Hollywood"